

I have always had enthusiasm and passion for working with people. Working to help end domestic violence and sexual assault is not only something that I have an interest in, but have wanted to become involved in. Being a part of the team at the centre makes me feel that I am making a difference within the community. No two days are the same for me. I work with a great team of nurses, counsellors, manager and education coordinator who are caring, compassionate people and give their all to make this centre a success. Working through all the challenges our work has to offer, we still find time to share good times. I look forward to continue being a part of this team and being a part of finding a future with no violence.
